PADEREWSKI AT 62 SCORES GREAT COMEBACK TO ART

World's Supreme Pianist Abandoned Career Seven Years Ago For Patriotic Service—Now Greater Than Ever

AMERICA DOES HOMAGE TO ARTIST, "HIMSELF AGAIN"

Paderewski has come back—at 62!—scoring the greatest personal artistic achievement of the century. The world's supreme pianist was 55 when he abandoned his artistic career for the patriotic service of his beloved Poland. When he had accomplished all he could for his country, he decided at 61 to return to his piano. But could he regain his former glory? Wilson G. Smith, one of America's foremost critics and composers, answers in the following article.

By Wilson G. Smith, Famous American Music Critic and Composer

Paderewski, erstwhile premier of Poland and present premier pianist of the world, has come again into his kingdom—the kingdom of art where he reigns with regal splendor.

Time was when he sat at the piano and like an improvisator wove tonal threads of which dreams are made, and cast the glamor of his poesy like a spell upon all who heard.

Technic, the mechanical means of expression, was lost sight and hearing of through the resplendent and ecstatic glory of his inspiration. He was a painter of moods clothed in colors glowing with iridescence—as changeable and beautiful as the rainbow.

To the old masters he imparted an undreamed of import, call it inspiration if you like, for it had a subtle quality that differentiated it from all others.

He molded his tonal phrases with the plastic certainty of utterance with which the deft hands of the sculptor models his clay.

In his halycon days Paderewski did more to make obvious to the public the essentials of tonal beauty as opposed to mere technical playing than all the horde of petty tyrants of the keyboard before or since.

This was Paderewski in his first estate; in latter years he seemed obsessd with the idea that noise—or volume, if you like—was the great prerquisite, and banged the piano like Hercules at his Augean task or Vulcan at his anvil.

The piano fairly groaned and shrieked under his titanic onslaughts. It was frenzied emotionalism carried to the nth degree, with but few traces of the subtle beauties that had characterized his former artistry.

It was a most astounding debacle and can only be accounted for through psychological reasoning and analysis, complex and subtle.

But now the tale is a differentone. Concisely, it is Paderewski redivivus the supreme artist of his first estate, with all his engaging charms of tonal beauty and interpretative inspiration reincarnated and made audible.

The master is himself again; through tragic experiences his inspirational style has become more mellowed and imbued with an even greater appeal and charm.

Twelve thousand people obsessed by enthusiam rose in mass to do him homage at the recital in Cleveland where I heard him the other evening.

To arouse enthusiasm in a mixed audience, with a severely classical program, means not mere virtuousity, but something far more reaching and that is, personality and the intriguing charm of inspirational playng. So I make no mistake in using the term "Paderewski redivivus"—an artist supreme and unapproachable.

ELECTRIC EXTENSION INTO STONY FORK

Kentucky Utilities Co. Makes Many Improvements in Section Around Middlesboro

Extension of an electric lighting system to the Stony Fork Junction section is now under way and will be completed this month, according to W. C. Stair, manager of the Kentucky Utilities Co. About 40 homes will be supplied with electric lights by this extension.

Main lines leading to this section have been in use for some time and the new work consists chiefly in running branch lines to the houses. It is estimated that from 60 to 75 homes will be users of the service before the end of the present year.

This is but one of the many improvements under construction or consideration by the power company. A 600-kilowatt station is being installed at the Chenoa branch. This is said to be 50 per cent larger than any of the other outlying stations.

The Yellow Creek section near Cross has contracted for a 150-kilowatt station and materials for making it are on the grounds or in transit

About 80 per cent of the lights and motive power of the mines of the outlying section are now supplied by the Kenbucky Utilities Co More and more the companies are abandoning their small private lighting and power plants for the cheaper service of the public service corporation.

"Our business for the year just ending was good," said Mr. Stair of course the dull business in the mining industry had is effect. But the demands for light and power for other purposes did not show any decrease during the entire year. General good business is reflected in the prosperity of the power and lighting companies. Prospects for a good year were never better with us than at present."

PREACHING ONLY AT PRESBYTERIAN AND BAP. CHURCHES

PINEVILLE, Jan. 13.—The Rev. Howad J. Brazelton of the First go to Middlesboro Sunday where he will preach the ordination sermon for the newly elected officers of the church at that place. All the usual sevices will be held at the Baptist church, according to the Rev. L. C. Kelly.

VACCINATION UPHELD BY SUPREME COURT

No Violation of Constitution for School Authorities to Exclude Those Refusing It

City health officials have authority under the police power of the state to require school children to be vaccinated and in so doing are not acting in contravention of the "due process" clauses of the fourteenth amendment, according to a decision of th Supreme Court of the United States delivered by Justice Brandeis in the case of Zucht V. King et al., of San Antonio, Texas.

Ordinances in that city provide that no child or other person shall attend a public school or other place of education without first having presented a certificate of vaccination. They also caused her to be excluded from a private school.

Th plaintiff claimed that the ordinances violate the fourteenth amendment, since they deprived her of liberty without due process of law, and that as administered they denied equal protection of laws. The case came to the Supreme Court on a writ of error, Justice Brandeis stated that in view of a long line of decisions rendered previously in the Supreme Court he could find in the record no question as to the validity of the ordinance sufficiently substantial to support the plaintiff's writ of error, and this writ was accordingly dismissed. —School Life

PATIENTS TELL OF CURES BY COUE

Work of French Scientist Is Almost Entirely matter of Autosuggestion

NANCY, France, Jan. 11.—In the camaraderie that exists among those who attend the auto suggestion clinic of Emile Coue, I heard many first hand stories of what Coue had done for his patients.

To these people I was a fellow sufferer. They wanted to banish my skepticism. So they frankly discussed their own ailments with me.

Here is a pretty American woman, married to a titled foreigner. For years, she told me she suffered from neuritis in her right shoulder and arm. She had been here for three months. Her pains went away over two months ago and have never returned.

CASE NUMBER TWO: Another American woman. Two years she had suffered from drooping eyelids. They would drop and completely cover her eyes. Her husband who is here with her, is a wealthy New York bluisness man He had called in celebrated specialists of our big cities. No results. She and her husband both told me Coue had cured her. One day when I was there, he turned to her and said: "Madame, when you leave here, always remember you are mistress of your eyelids."

CASE NUMBER THREE: A Canadian civil engineer. He had suffered some kind of lesion in the brain from overwork. He had difficulty in walking. And sometimes, when he started walking, he had difficulty in stopping. He told me he was well on the way to recovery. And I myself saw him run for a street car and board it without trouble.

CASE NUMBER FOUR: A ranch and mine owner from South Africa who came here for relief from the horrors of insomnia. He is now sleeping like a normal person should. But he told me something more wonderful than that. His spectacles had irritated the skin back of one of his ears. The sore grew bigger and bigger and ever more painful. Doctors in South Africa told him it was some strange fibrous growth and advised him to consult surgeons in England. He isn't going to because he tells me that since he has been here in Nancy using autosuggestion, the swelling has gone down to one-third its former size and is still decreasing.

CASE NUMBER FIVE: An English woman. The marks of suffering are on her face. Pain has cut deep circles under her eyes. She told me she had been confined to her bed for eight years with various ailments Now she lives like ot her people. She attends the Coue clinics. She goes for long walks. At night she visits the theatre and enjoys it.

CASE NUMBER SIX: An American woman from Connecticut. For years a sufferer from asthma. Now she breathes in comfort. She had not been able to enjoy theaters because she couldn't be shut up that way with other people. The other night I saw her at the opera in Nancy.

I could go on and on, citing other instances. These people are Coue fans. They have all the enthusiasm of religious converts. Some are insisting upon making gifts of money to Monsieur Coue. And when people voluntarily part with money it means something.

MORE CONVERSIONS IN BAPTIST REVIVAL

Subject Last Night, "Repentance"—Sermon Tonight Is Especially Recommended

The attendance at the Baptist revival last night was the largest that has been had yet. The Rev. Finley T. Gibson's sermon subject was "Repentance" and so forcibly did he drive home his message that several additions to the church were made at the close of the service. The music was exceptionally good last night. On special request, J. Fred Schofield sang "Roll, Billows, Roll."

Dr. Gibson began his sermon by defining the doctrine of repentance, next he told why people should repent, and then he showed that this had always been the biggest time for the preachers, preachers beginning with the Saviour. "People are true in their Christian life just as they are true in their repentance."

Dr. Gibson will preach tonigt on "The Second Coming of Christ, or What Is He Coming For?" Mr. Schofield, the song leader, declares that this is the greatest sermon he ever heard. The evangelist will preach at both services of the church tomorrow.

Show your appreciation of your Grand Chancellor, White L. Moss, by attending Service Sunday evening, 7:30 p. m. at Christian church.

A THOUGHT

Behold all ye that kindle a fire, and compare yourselves about with sparks; walk in the light of your fire, and in the sparks which ye have kindled.—Isaiah 50:10.

The way to mend the bad world is to create the right world.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

WOMEN'S CLUBS AND POLITICS

Thirty-five years ago women's clubs were just beginning their precarious struggle for existence in the United States. From the first they were a typically American adventure, these organizations of women formed to read papers and to discuss current events—no meeting was complete without its "current events half-hour." The clubs were the outgrowth of the intense desire of women for self-culture. They succeeded primarily because the desire for self-culture itself was the result of a wish to be of greater service to the community, to the world. Incontestably the women's clubs were the training school for many who afterward became leaders in the suffrage cause and in other phases of the feminist movement.

In time too the women's clubs prospered. Prejudice and opposition were broken down. The women began to build clubhouses which became community centers. They began to be factors in community affairs, to send their representatives to speak for bills before the town council, the state legislatures, even Congress. But with prosperity there came a certain tendency toward conservatism. Individual women still led in the clubs and in the campaign for equal suffrage. Some clubs even remained in the van of a woman movement. They developed departments of legislation and citizenship. They instituted clean-up days, painted town pumps, planted flowers around railroad stations and campaigned for the vote. But there were other clubs, a goodly number of them, which decreed that the mention of any public question as clean streets or tariff reform, was "politics," and "politics" was barred from discussion.

Today women's clubs are entering upon a new epoch. Quietly, so gradually in fact that the tendency has been almost unnoticed outside the ranks, the clubs, progressive and conservative, have been drawing together for another forward step. With the year the General Federation of Women's Clubs has obtained from its 2,500,000 members payments and pledges covering the $100,000 purchase price of the headquarters which it is now opening in Washington. The headquarters will serve as a center for research information of all kinds for the organization, but primarily it will act as a disseminator of information on government and government affairs. Political information will be popularized and interest and activity in citizenship will be aroused. For the women's clubs are about to fulfill their mission. Just as they started thirty-five years ago to supplement the academic education of their members, today they are preparing to meet their need for political education, to fit them to be of greater service to the community and to the world.—Christian Science Monitor.

One might as well have a good time This life is only temporary.

❖ ❖ Berton Braley's Daily Poem ❖ ❖

SHIPS

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ By Berton Braley ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

The Stately Spanish Galleons were splendidly romantic,
Bearing golden treasure far across the surging main,
But a mighty modern liner, smashing through the broad Atlantic,
For me has greater wonder than the Galleons of Spain:
Neither storm nor tide can bind her as she throws the miles behind her,
With the thrust of purring turbines and the kick of spinning screws;
Oh, the might of steam that urges as she bucks the ocean surges,
While the breath of all her boilers goes a-roaring up her flues!

The Stately Spanish Galleons—a flock of them beside her
Would look like pleasure barges for a picnic down the bay,
And looking from the upper deck the passengers who ride her
Would wonder that such cockleshells would tempt the ocean spray;
Those little ships have glory which is told in song and story,
But the liner, too, is epic as she swings from out the dock,
On a steady passage over from the Ambrose light to Dover,
On a schedule adjusted to the minute by the clock.

The Stately Spanish Galleons were playthings of the oceans,
They tossed, close-reefed and battered, when the tempest showed its force,
But the liner is disdainful of the salt sea's gusty notions,
And slams along regardless on her predetermined course:
She's the child of skill and science, she's the human mind's defiance
Of the whirlwind and the tempest and the fog and driving snow,
Clean, serene, superb, gigantic—oh, to me she's more romantic
Than the Stately Spanish Galleons that went sailing long ago!

371 MAKE DECISION DURING PINEVILLE REVIVAL SERVICES

Dr. Trigg Thomas, Who Comes To Middlesboro Presbyterian Church Monday, Held Record Meeting In Neighboring Town

EVANGELIST WAS FORMERLY NEWSPAPER MAN AT BRISTOL

PINEVILLE, Jan. 13.—At the conclusion of the first ten days of the revival services being held at the Presbyterian Church in Pineville by the Rev. Dr. Trigg A. M. Thomas of Kansas City, there have been 371 recorded decisions for the church. Besides the evening services which are held every night in the church, each day has been filled with various prayer and preaching services conducted at different places.

At nine o'clock each morning Dr. Thomas, assisted by the Rev C. L. Nisbet, has opened the days session of the Bell County Circuit Court with prayers and a short sermon. This is followed at ten with prayer meetings held in four of the church members homes. Perhaps the most interesting service held is conducted at 5:30 o'clock each evening in the store of Mayor L. L. McDonald in Walls End. Here between fifty and a hundred people crowd in to hear the message of the Dr. Thomas and the Rev. Nisbet. These regular meetings are supplemented by other services when possible, and Dr. Thomas has talked to the student body of the Pineville High school at different times.

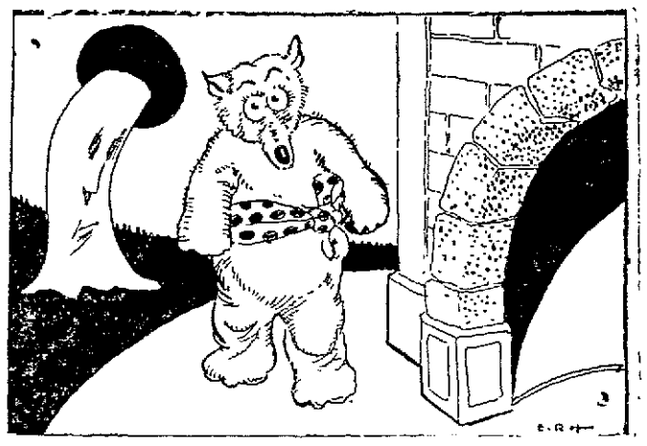
Sunday will be the last day of the meeting here and the following subjects have been selected by Dr. Thomas for his day's services: At 10 o'clock he will talk on "The A. B. C. of Religion;" and at 11 "God's Unspeakable Gift;" at 3 o'clock in the afternoon a great mass meeting of men and boys will be held at which he will take as his subject "The Meanest Man in Pineville;" and at 7:30 o'clock his subject will be "The Value of the Soul"

The subject for Saturday night will be "The Unpardonable Sin"

Dr Thomas will go to Middlesboro Monday where he will conduct another revival meeting. He has had a wide experience in both the ministry and other lines of work which makes his addresses more strikingly interesting. He started his career as a newspaper man, being associate editor of the Bristol News, at Bristol Va., before that paper was merged into the Courier-Herald.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



Everybody in Dreamland sat around in a circle.

It was a new kind of school Nancy was having where everybody could say as much as he liked and whatever he liked.

"Next!" called Nancy. "Will Buster Brown Bear please recite"

Instantly there was a scramble.

"Buster Bear here!" shrieked Jack Jumping Mouse, starting to jump away, forgetting that he was now as big as a kangaroo.

"Buster Bear!" shivered Mike Mole.

"Buster Bear!" gasped Phil Frog

"Buster Bear!" shouted Ben Bunny and Wally Woodchuck and everybody.

Nancy laughed. "Wait till you see him!" she said.

Just then Buster himself waddled around a corner, a nice good natured stuffed Teddy Bear with shoe button eyes and yarn toe-nails.

"Oh!" said Jack Mouse in a relieved voice.

"Oh!" said Mike Mole.

"Oh!" said everybody. "Oh! Oh! Oh!" And they all sat down again.

"Will you please recite," said Nancy to Buster.

"Certainly!" said Buster obligingly, with a squeaky voice away down in his chest. "But I can't stay long. My mistress will be looking for me. That's the little girl who bought me in the Dreamland Toy Store. But I'll have time to say a speech about bees."

"Good," said Nancy, rapping to keep order "Please begin."

"Oh, bees,
They live in trees,
Thick as fleas,
If you please.
They tease
Me when I sneeze
And then I sneeze
And shake my knees
And fall down to the ground.

"That's all I know," said Buster "Goodby! I must be going. I'll come back anytime you want me." And he waddled away on his sawdust legs.

"Goodby, Buster," called the whole Dreamland School after him "That was a lovely piece"

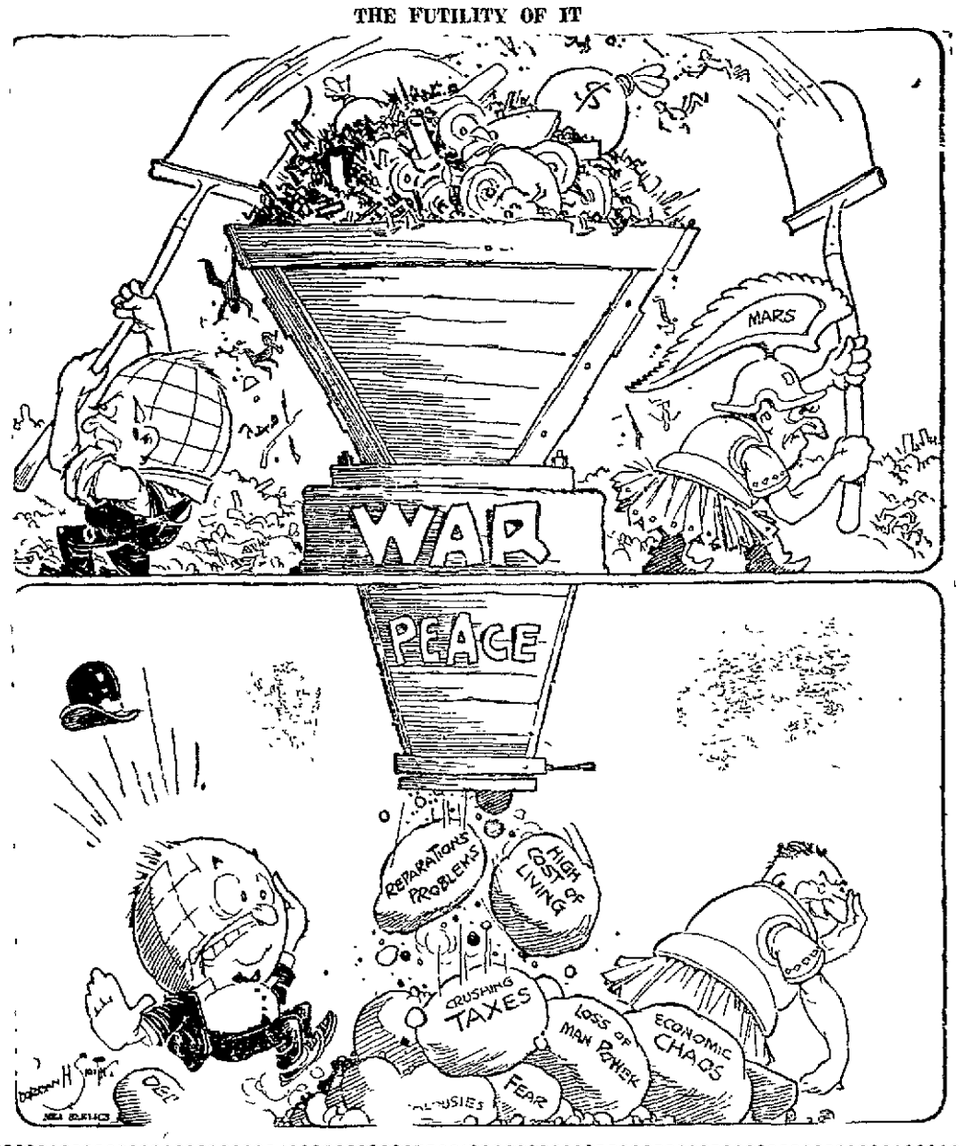
THE FUTILITY OF IT



THE ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abeling.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATE WARD, widow of
DAN WARD, living with her father.
JUSTIN PARSONS, has a visitor,
CHINATOWN ALICE, who says Dan was father of Alice's child,
Dorothy. A few nights later Kate and her father are led by their dog,
MONK, to a lonely spot where lies an unconscious man. Carried to their home, he recovers and gives his name as JAMES LATHAM He lingers with them a few days, evidently much attracted to Kate.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

James Latham had asked her to call him Jim! It was all happening just as she had known it would! What was it that had forewarned her? Kate sat looking at the stars that night long after the youth had climbed to the sloping roofed room.

Life always had been more or less of a problem to Kate from the time she opened her eyes to a mother who didn't understand her. It seemed that with every day the skein became more tangled. She had thought that in coming back to the little she could live out the rest of her life in a sort of a dream world. She had wanted so much to rest! But realities had sought her out again and swung her to the very center of the web.

Sleep, which finally came with mental exhaustion, was deep and restful. Kate awakened refreshed and ready for the trip which Jim and she had planned the evening before.

Jim's automobile had been returned, ready for use. They were going to motor to Terre Haute just for the pleasure of the ride through the lovely fall landscape.

Kate was radiant when her little family gathered at the breakfast table, and beautiful when cloaked, hatted and veiled, she slipped into the seat beside James Latham.

"Off with you now—and don't slide down another embankment!" Justin waved to them as the car rolled away from the little house.

"You beautiful thing!" Latham's voice was low. He bent toward Kate as the car rounded the curve into the main road.

Kate thrilled. She loved his voice. This in spite of herself, for she knew that Latham was young, and more than that, she had, somehow, a feeling of debt to Dan—a debt of love and faith.

"Didn't we agree when we planned this trip that you were to be most circumspect, young man!" Kate half scolded.

"But who," Latham was smiling, "could expect a man to keep promises made in moonlight? Moonlight was made for love and—lies! Harmless lies, of course."

"Jimmy lad, will you ever be serious and sensible?" whimsically.

"And," continued Kate, "because you've broken one promise to me already, I'm going to ask you to make another? Will you?"

"Anything, Lady Fair!" gallantly. "Anything your little heart desires!"

"Four square—no joking?" Kate was suddenly serious.

"No joking."

"Then," Kate spoke slowly, "I want you to take me to a certain Chinese laundry while we're in Terre Haute."

Oh, it's bonny here at home,
But I must go away.

Little Road like me
Would seek and turn and know;
Afar forth, I must, to learn the things
The little Road must show!

Go, I must, my dears,
And journey while I may,
Though heart be sore for the little House
That had no word to say.

For be no other way
Our child could ever know
Why a little house would have you stay
When a little Road says Go.

—Josephine Preston Peabody.

"WORSE THAN PAIN"

Louisiana Lady Says She Has "Never Found Anything Better Than Cardui for a Run-Down Condition."

Morgan City, La.—"It would be hard for me to tell how much benefit I have derived from the use of Cardui," said Mrs. I. G. Bowman, of 1319 Front Street, this city.

"I was so run-down in health I could hardly go. I was thin. I had no appetite. Could not rest or sleep well. I was so weak, and so very nervous, I was no pleasure to myself.

"I suffered some pain, but the worst of my trouble was from being so weak and easy to get tired and out of heart.

"This nervous condition was worse than pain.

"Some one told me of Cardui, and I decided to use it.

"After using a few bottles, I regained my strength. I wasn't so nervous, and began to eat and sleep, and grew stronger and was soon well.

"I have never found anything better for a run-down condition."

If you suffer as this Louisiana lady did, you, too, should find Cardui helpful for your troubles.

Less Meat If Kidneys Bother

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder troubles you.

No man or woman who eats too much meat can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Big meat eating may develop uric acid, which excites the kidneys; they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood; then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleepiness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications.

Ouch! Aching Joints, Rub Rheumatic Pain

Rheumatism is "pain" only.

Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Stop drugging! Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right into your sore, stiff, aching joints, and relief comes instantly. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappoints and cannot burn the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic pain, soreness and stiffness. Don't suffer! Relief awaits you. "St. Jacobs Oil" is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sprains.

SCHOOL TO OPEN DESPITE HANDICAPS OF ROADS, FREIGHT

CONSPIRACY OF ELEMENTS FAIL TO HALT PROMOTORS OF RED BIRD SETTLEMENT SCHOOL

REV. DEWALL AND TEACHERS NOT DETERRED BY HARDSHIPS

(From The Pineville Sun)

Three of the four furnaces for the Red Bird settlement school which the manufacturer said were shipped from Detroit November 19, have not yet arrived in Pineville, on their way to Blanche, from which point they will be hauled to Red Bird, the Rev. J. J. DeWall said Thursday.

Twenty desks said to have been shipped from Chicago November 22 have not yet arrived.

Sixty-four radiators for the new dormitory, shipped from Cincinnati November 19 have not arrived.

A carload of dressed lumber, shipped from Middlesboro Wednesday of last week, was in Pineville and moved out to Blanche Thursday of this week and will be hauled on over to the school at Beverly at once.

The boiler at the planing mill, where the lumber for the new dormitory was sawed, burst Monday.

And yet------

Despite all these handicaps, the winter term of the school will open next Monday, with 60 children ready to occupy rooms in the partially completed dormitory. The girls will be quartered in the dormitory library, where the single furnace that arrived has been set up. The boys will go to sleeping rooms without heat. Four stoves, hauled out from Pineville, will be used—temporarily—until the prodigal furnaces arrive.

And these are not all of the handicaps of schooling on the Red Bird.

A carload of furniture for the dormitory, shipped from Knoxville, was hauled out from Blanche last week in a snow and hail storm. Since it arrived it was necessary to revarnish the entire shipment before it could be used. A big range for the dormitory, similar to a hotel range, was hauled out from Blanche, requring two and one-half days to make the trip. Eight hours were required to get it over the mountain that hedges in the school on the south side.

"We could have saved the price of a five ton truck in hauling for our new dormitory," said the Rev. Mr. DeWall, "if we had had a good road out from Blanche. Sure I am going to the road meetng at Manchester and Barbourville next month, and anywhere else where I can get some encouragement on that road, or give any information that will make it a reality one day sooner.

The new dormitory is but little more than half completed The first and second stories are ready for occupancy, subject to heating arrangements The first floor will be used for a library, dining room and kitchen. The second floor to be used for dormitory purposes, is ready also. The third floor alone remains unfinished.

"The building as it stands has cost us about $15,500," said Mr. DeWall, "all of which we have collected from our pledges. It will cost us about $3500 to complete the third story, and this has been promised to us by our good friends at Middlesboro, and I have been promised that it will be available to us this month."

One thing the Red Bird school has an abundance of, Mr. DeWall said, and that is bed clothes.

"I wish you could have seen the shipment of bedding we received from our good friends up north," he said, as a broad smile spread across his face.

"We can fill the dormitory to its capacity, 125 boys and girls, just as soon as the third floor is completed, and many of these boys and girls will be children who have never been to school or whose schooling has been of the most meagre type."

Miss Myra Johnson, of Pineville, will be the guest of Mrs. F. P. Scales for the week-end.

Mrs. Nora Turner, of Noetown, and John Mason, of Shamrock, were married at Cumberland Gap Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Watson, of Richmond, Ky., are visiting in Middlesboro.
